Abstract of the Disclosure

In a group communication system, it makes possible a mobile station, that is not currently under a group communication, to can participate in the a group communication.

Where a A location registration signal is transmitted to a base station 3—5-upon turning on the power of a mobile station or when a mobile station in communication over a moves through plurality of between communication zones entered a group communication objective wireless zone due to hand over or the like, providing a A group communication number for is sent from the mobile station and is examined against by a group-communication group number controlling register in a control station, examining The examination determines the presence or absence of a group communication call corresponding to the group-communication number sent by of the mobile station, notifying Notification information on a relevant call, if present, is sent to the mobile station, which can then to participate in the group communication in the course thereof.